ALICIA PERRILLO

Please share a bit about your journey to choose a career in fashion? Where did you choose to study or, if self taught, how did you gain your skills?

I always knew I wanted to be a fashion designer, but I didn't pursue it until later in life. When I was 32 I decided it was ridiculous that I hadn't tried yet. I was accepted into the School of the Art Institute of Chicago for Fashion Design. I graduated in 2016.

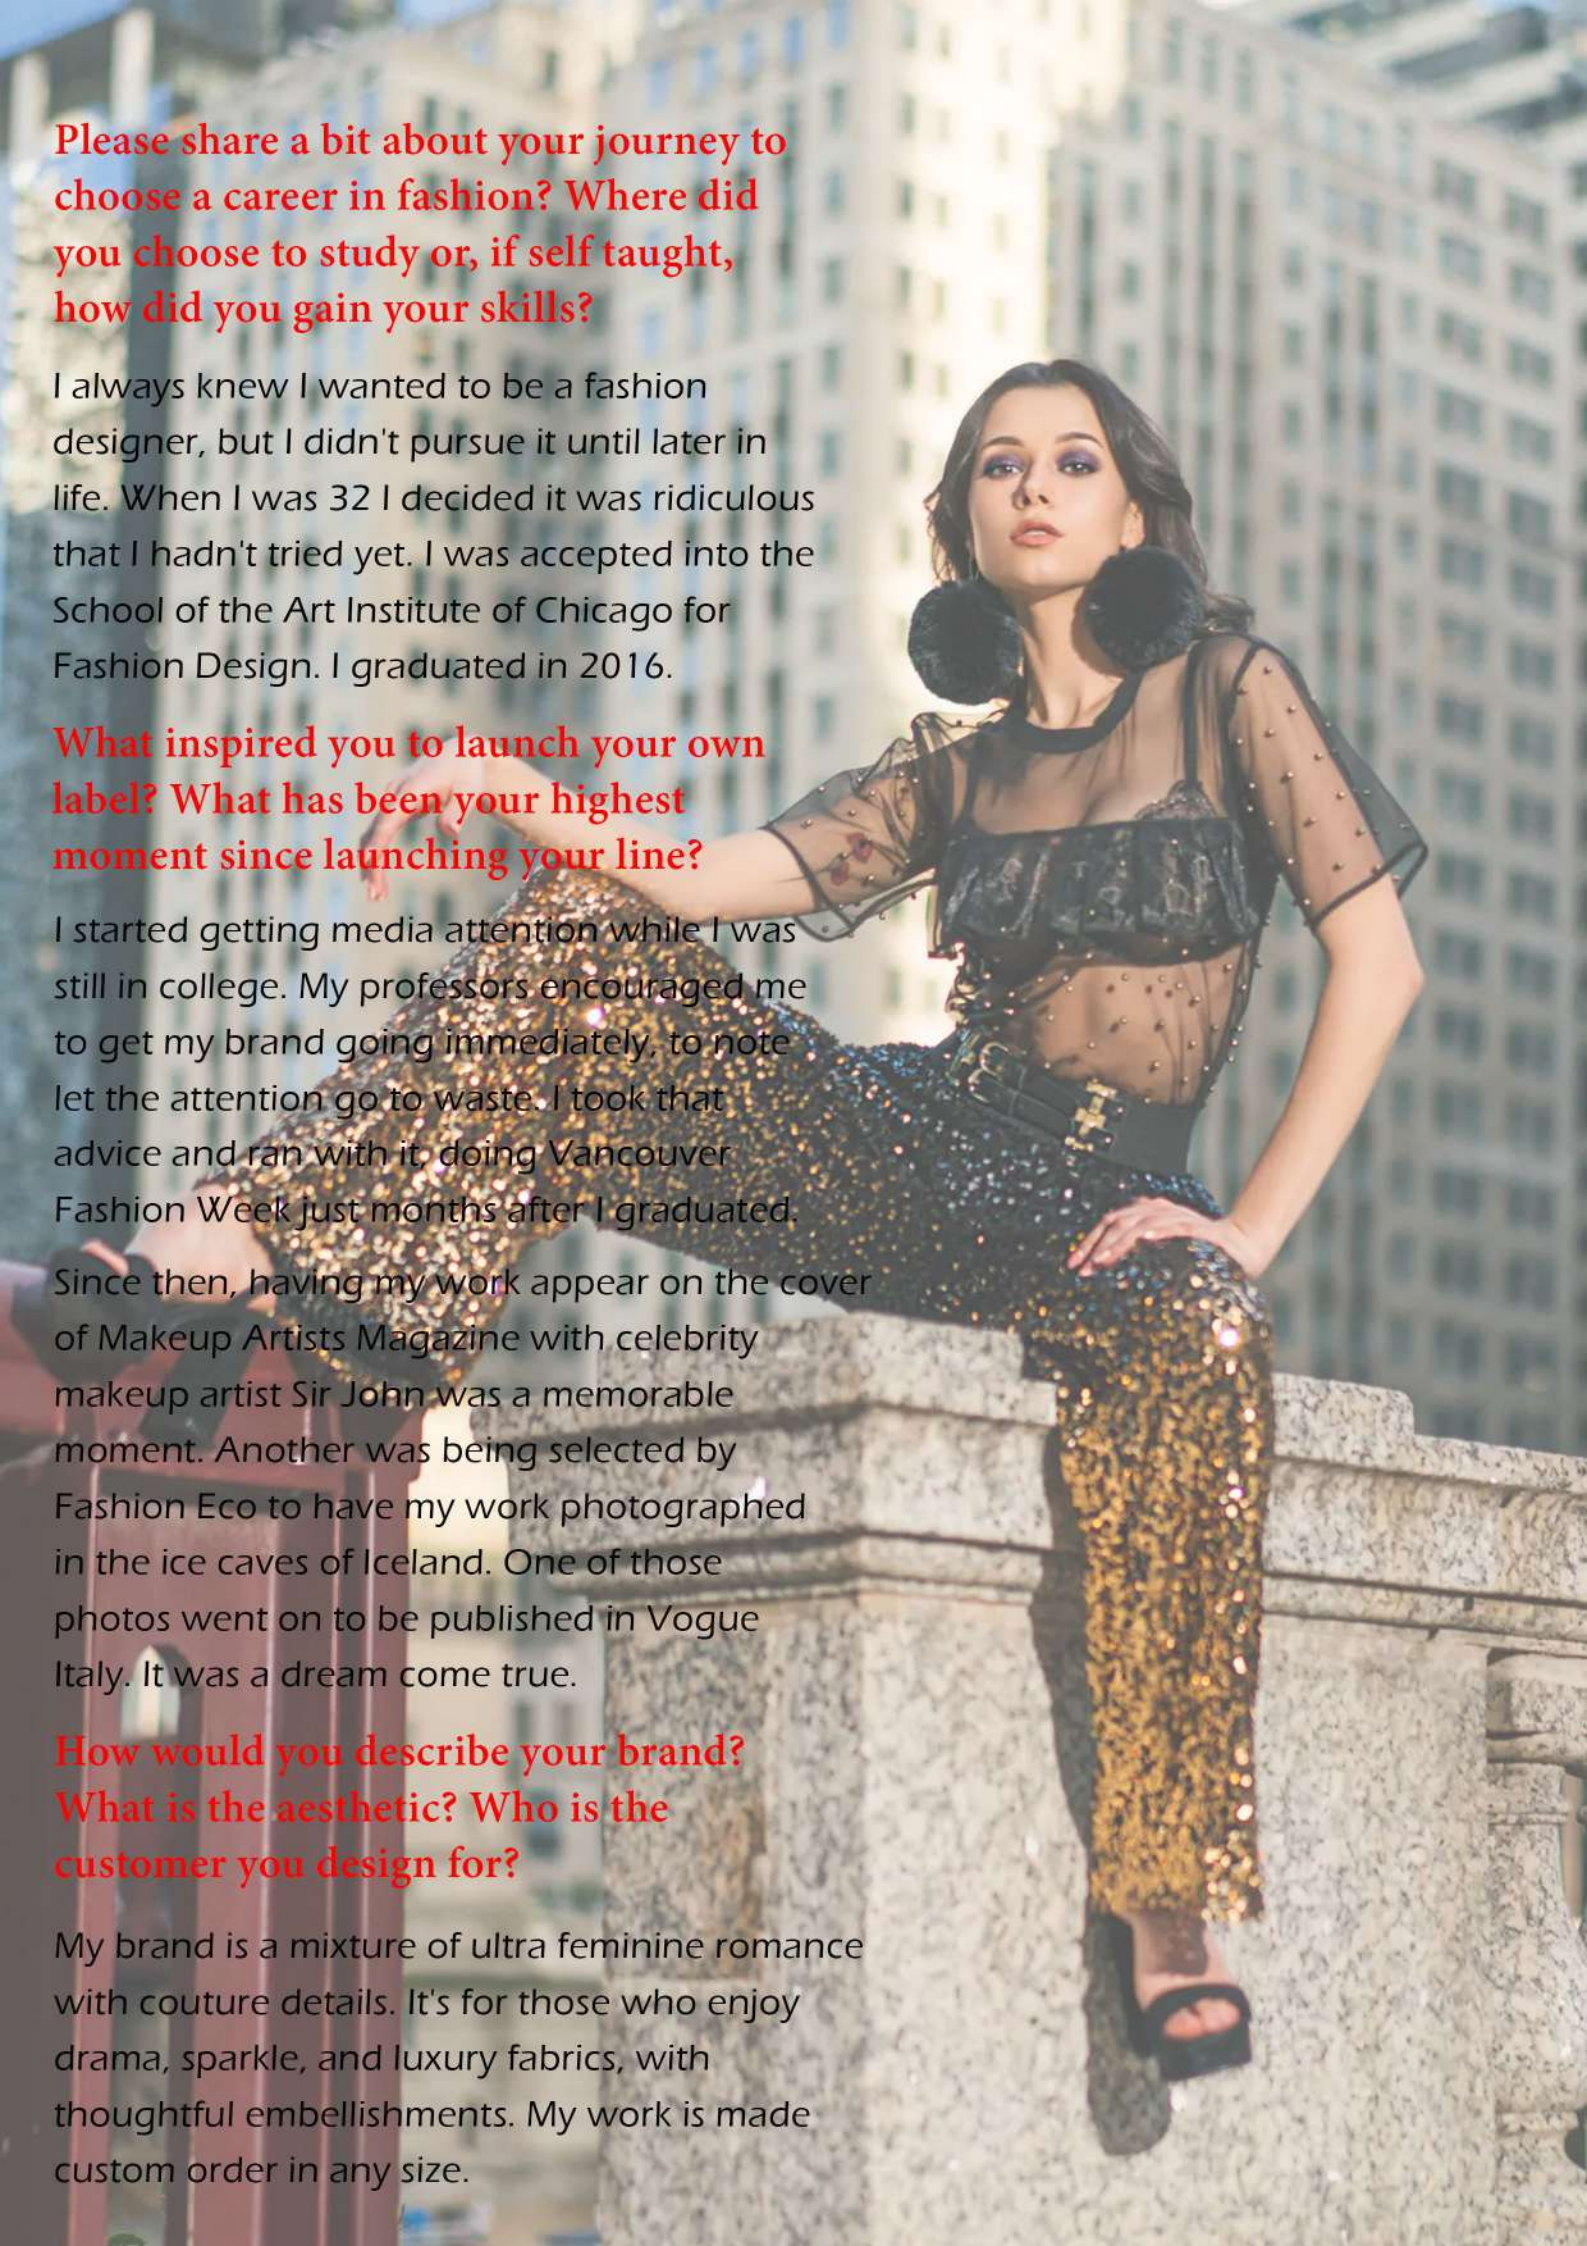

What inspired you to launch your own label? What has been your highest moment since launching your line?

I started getting media attention while I was still in college. My professors encouraged me to get my brand going immediately, to not let the attention go to waste. I took that advice and ran with it, doing Vancouver Fashion Week just months after I graduated.

Since then, having my work appear on the cover of Makeup Artists Magazine with celebrity makeup artist Sir John was a memorable moment. Another was being selected by Fashion Eco to have my work photographed in the ice caves of Iceland. One of those photos went on to be published in Vogue Italy. It was a dream come true.

How would you describe your brand? What is the aesthetic? Who is the customer you design for?

My brand is a mixture of ultra feminine romance with couture details. It's for those who enjoy drama, sparkle, and luxury fabrics, with thoughtful embellishments. My work is made custom order in any size.

Here is something that we guarantee will turn that day right around. Fashionista Cate Ayellah went and played with makeup along side Mona Faces and the shoot that followed was what dreams are made of!

Her look included a muted dewy face with peach glossy lids and a splash of sunshine yellow on her lower lid. Topped off with a brown glossy lip and complemented with a beige turtleneck top, she's an image of perfection in this look!

"I consider comfort first though," she says. "I chose what will flatter my body type and colours that will flatter my skin tone. Shoes are also a defining factor as these transform your attitude. They lift you physically and emotionally!"

Iman was heavily influenced to take risks from a young age, as she saw both of her grandfathers make an impact through their businesses in Sudan. However, entrepreneurship seemed to skip a generation and, when her father became an ENT surgeon, she and her brothers followed in his footsteps.

Halfway through med school, Iman realized that she didn't want to be a practitioner. She wanted to take the skills she had learned into the corporate world. After receiving her MBA and getting some consulting experience under her belt, she decided to leave Silicon Valley and make her own mark on the world. After a failed venture with her first startup, she pivoted quickly and that's when Incredible Health was born.

JOVANA RIKALO

Jovana was born and raised in Serbia, and still lives there in the city of Novi Sad, but she is aware of the limitations of being based in a country of just over 7,000,000 inhabitants. "Serbia is a little country and you cannot do a lot here because we have a small market. I travel a lot and meet people from all around the world because I want to see how other countries work for me and if I can do any projects abroad."

Jovana Rikalo is a fine art and portrait photographer from Serbia. She has a Law Degree but her love for photography led her to a career in photography in 2013 and has since built a growing reputation thanks to her dreamy and emotion-packed imagery, which is often shot outdoors using just natural light. Her commercial clients have included Hugo Boss Serbia, Miss Yu and the watch companies MVMT and ZINVO. Her work has been published around the world in magazines such as Vogue Italia, Creative Review, Bella Grace, Spunky and Scorpio Jin.

Capturing images of humans is like capturing their souls and this is not something every photographer manages to get right. Portrait photography requires its own skills and there are many factors that need to be taken into account to get the image right. The whole idea of perfectly freezing special moments and feelings pushes the Serbian artist to take risks, get creative and learn as much as she can about the art of photo editing.

JULIA VAFINA

While he was always drawn to the world of fashion, her family background restricted her to take a step forward. At the young age when Julia Valina put forth her dream of becoming a fashion designer, her parents refused as they were going through a lot. Her father lost her job and fashion designing was not considered to be a well paid profession. Her parents also didn't have enough financial sources to back up her further studies so fashion was a big NO.

Since Julia's parents were against her career of choice, she couldn't find any other way and decided to leave her home. She left everything behind to follow her passion. But the road ahead was all filled with stones. She left home and came to other city after her parents refused to pay the fees for the exam. However, she started working as a waiter in city and paid all the fees for the ace designing institute.

While Julia's designs are all connected to United roots, her designs also mirror the Britain handloom and culture. Julia's attraction towards Western handloom made her a pioneer to bring the best of Britain thread craft and designs.

Drawn in by the “interesting and romantic” horizon of fashion shows, Ina started to experiment with makeup on herself in her adulthood but it isn't that easy to build a career in art for a typical Indian family.

In her early days, the art of makeup came naturally to her (with lots of practice) unlike the opportunities to practice as a professional, but with her unshaken determination and desire to be the best, she has turned the situation into a favorable one.

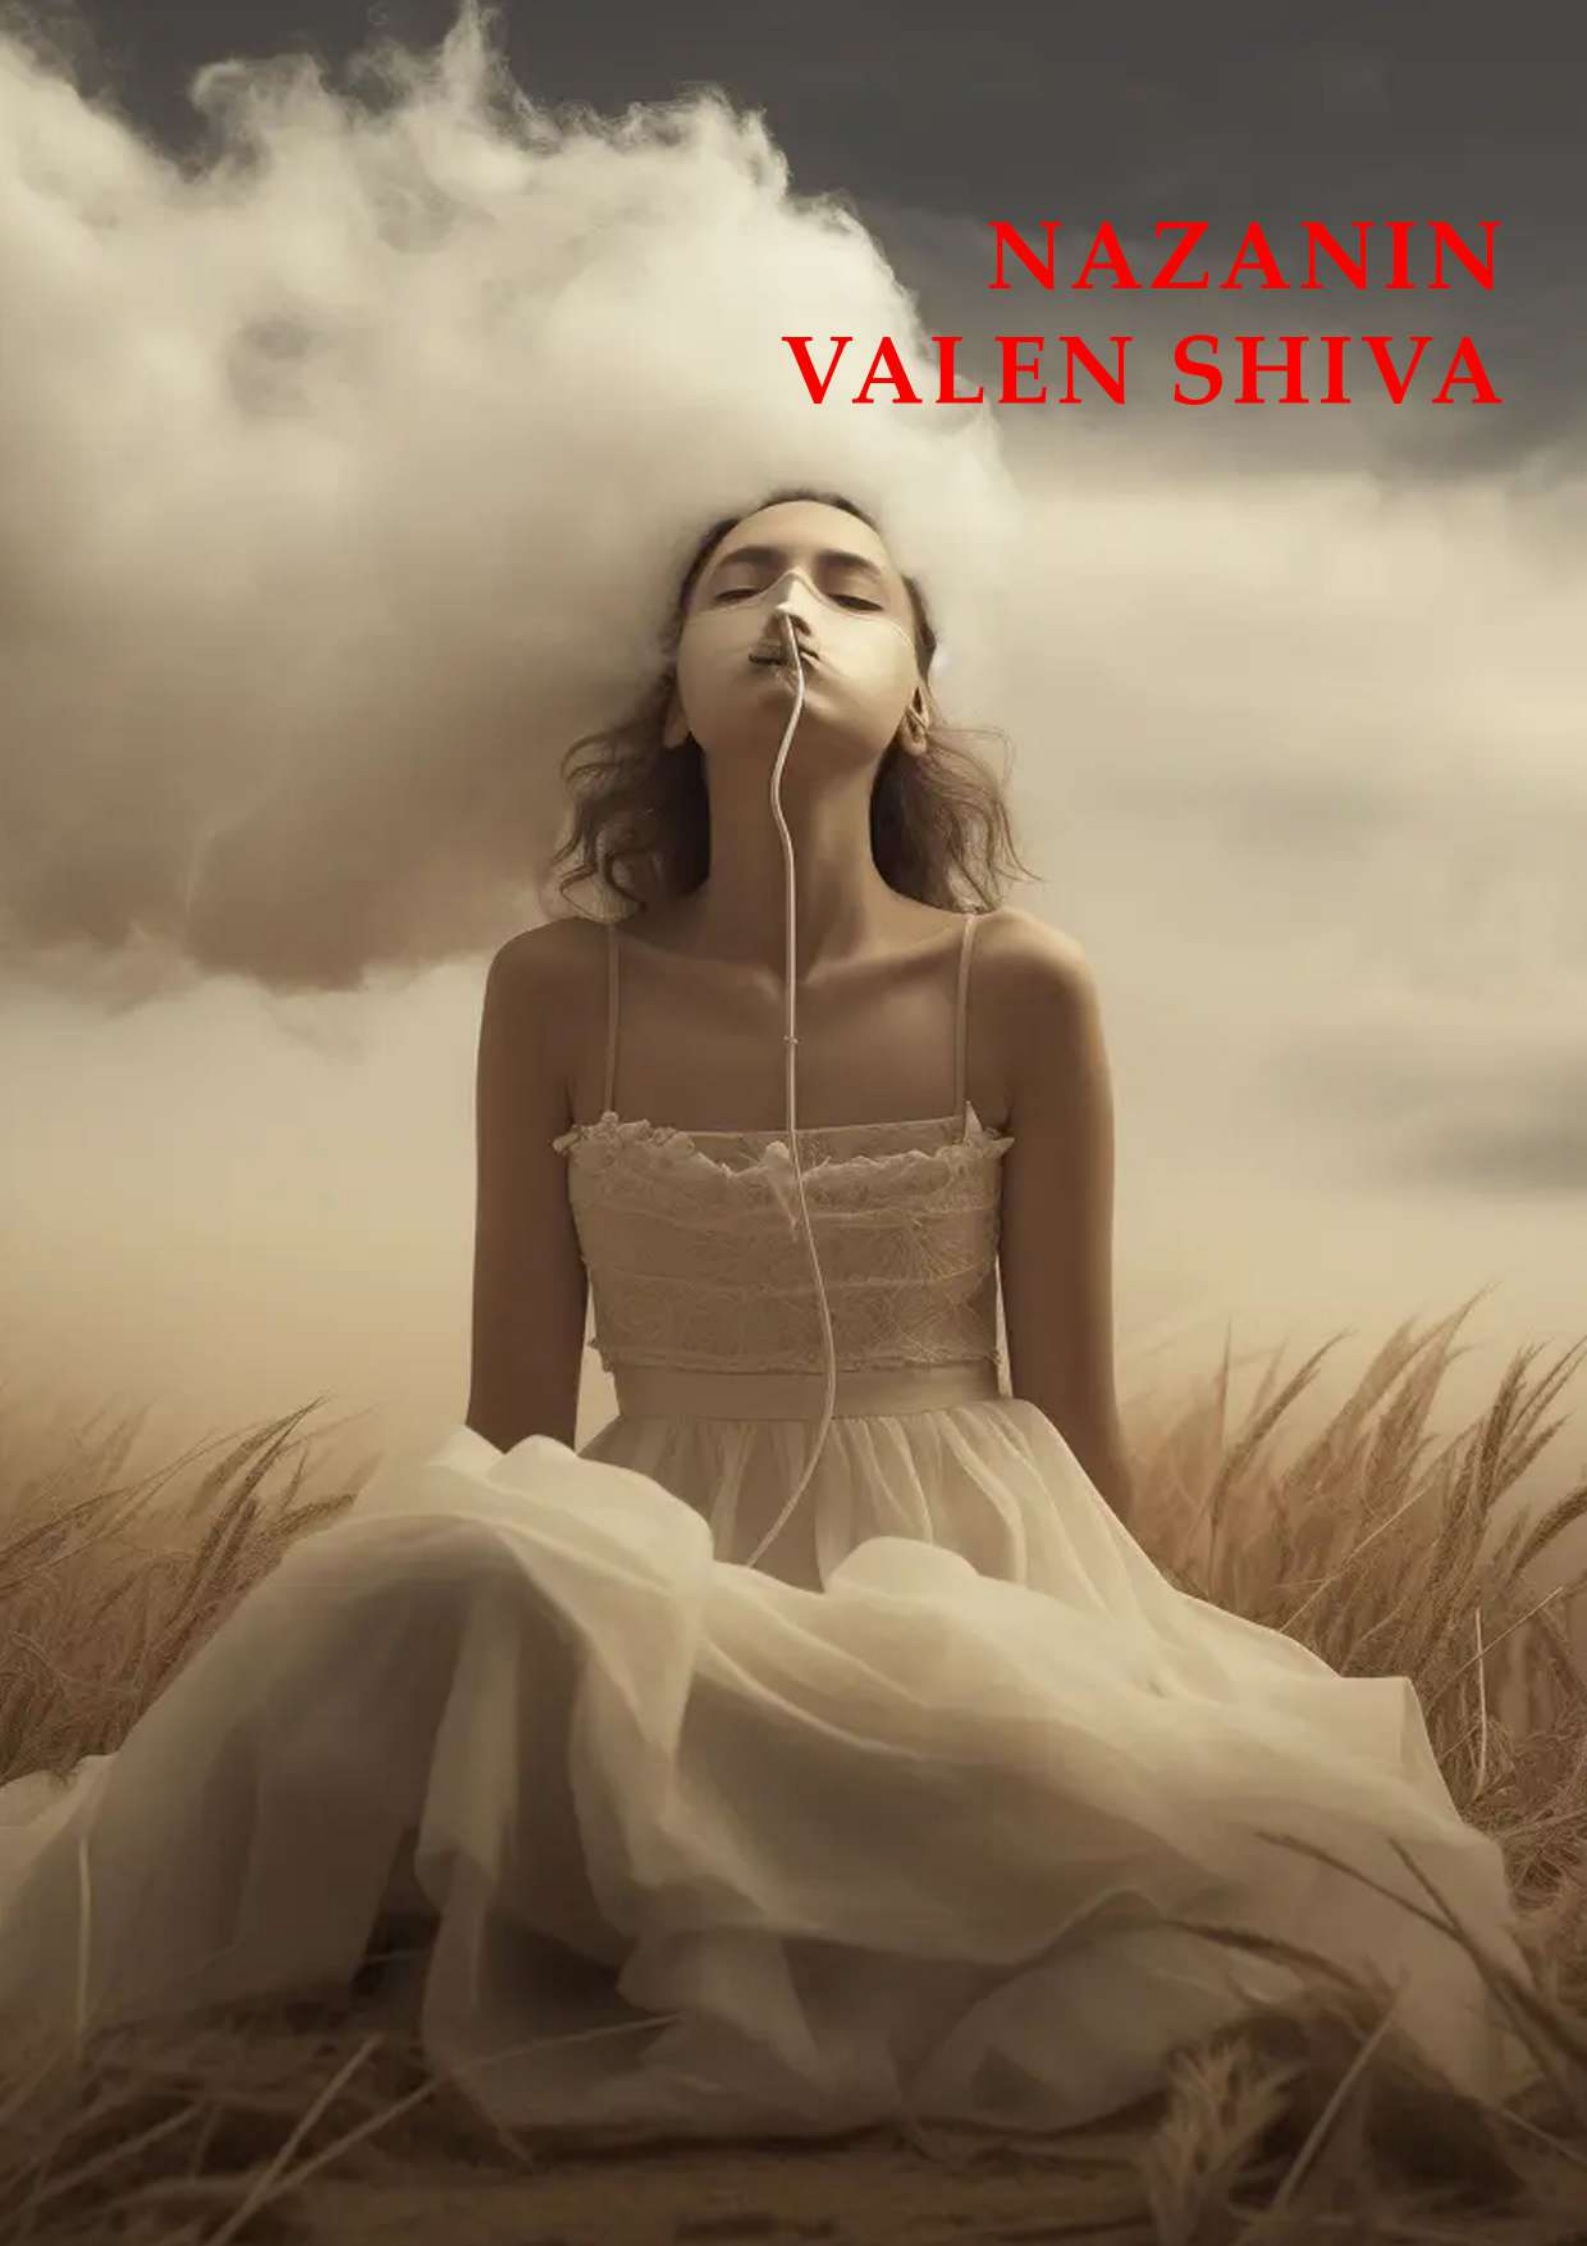

She has a knack for new trends and how to put them to practical use. She has figured out the right blend of shine and shimmer for different occasions which is as crucial in makeup as having a ball in soccer.

When we asked Naznin Valeh Shiva to comment on being a female photographer in this industry, she shared, "I am seeing more and more women photographers. 10 or 15 years ago, that wasn't the case. Many family portrait are moms, and they become photographers because they want to take better pictures of their kids. So I just love seeing women being creative and finding a way to make money doing it. If you have the passion for it, go for it". For Naznin, life is about finding your passion and giving it your all. Being a woman in the wedding photography industry taught her several lessons about never giving up, no matter how hard life gets, even when balancing kids and work. Simply put, Naznin believes, "It's all worth it."

NAZANIN
VALEN SHIVA

This year more than ever I've been leaning on the things that inspire me. I am a very self-motivated person and can happily work hours every day. However, every once in a while I need to dip into things that reset my perspective and give me a new look into life and my business. It's when I surround myself with these things that I think of new projects, find my voice, and get excited by new dreams. They return me to my "why" and remind me of where I want my life to go.

I love fiction, fantasy, mythology, and juvenile literature because they're meant to make you feel and connect with others. How could I not love the thrill of turning page after page, getting attached to characters, and experiencing new worlds? Late high school and early college I thought I didn't have time to read for fun, but when I picked it up again I realized how much I needed it.

Yoo Inna, whose new rom-com Reach of Sincerity just premiered on tvN. The role is not only her follow-up to the 2016 hit The Lonely Shining Goblin, but famously reunites her with her Goblin co-star Lee Dong-wook.

Born in 1982 in Seongnam, South Korea, Yoo Inna's story as an actress and entertainer is quite an inspiring one. She started her career as an idol trainee, and though she trained for over a decade in several different agencies, Yoo Inna struggled to debut. It wasn't until she decided to try acting in 2009 that she finally found her niche. When asked about her career and changing courses after so many years, Yoo Inna had a wonderful quote: "Even a compass, which is supposed to tell you which direction to go, wobbles before it finds its true course. I hope young people aren't too scared of facing the wobbles along the way, because they're a natural part of the journey." After her debut, Yoo Inna also became successful as a DJ, and the host of TV shows like Get it Beauty.
